2025 ANNUAL MEETING

April 6-8, 2025

LOEWS PHILADELPHIA, PHILADELPHIA, PA

aspo.org

DEAR PARTNERS,

The American Society of Preventive Oncology is the only professional society dedicated solely to cancer prevention research. We are a community of investigators, Cancer Center Directors, Program Leaders, Patient Advocates, and other cancer prevention and control professionals working together to exchange scientific information to reduce the cancer burden.

ASPO has more than 400 members from all over the country, representing every major cancer center. We offer year-round activities via webinars, position papers, CEBP reports, Special Interest Group activities, and our Annual Meeting. With more than 450 attendees, the meeting brings together scientists, graduate students, postdoctoral trainees, and community and patient advocates to share knowledge and advances in cancer prevention.

We will hold our 49th Annual Meeting in Philadelphia, PA, April 6-8 at the Loews Philadelphia. As we had into the 50th anniversary, we are focused on honoring the strides cancer research has made while continuing to work toward eliminating the cancer burden and reducing cancer health disparities. We have assembled a stellar scientific committee led by Dr. Carolyn Heckman and Dr. Karen Wernli, and they are creating a stimulating program for the 2025 meeting.

Our partners are invaluable to ASPO - your support allows us not only to ensure ongoing resources and learning opportunities for members, but also makes ASPO accessible to community partners, patient advocates, students, post-docs, and more.

Please consider becoming a sponsor and joining us in the fight against cancer.
